Summary Report

VM15: Climate change in Health

With the increasing urbanization around us, we are facing multiple climatic changes like global warming and these changes are affecting our environment and us, human beings. Though these diseases were not seen in the past, these are now being identified as emerging topics in health and disease. Hence, this course is being conducted to sensitize our future doctors to the various health implications of climatic change.

To share their expertise with us we had with us two public health professionals Dr. Sushma, Professor & HOD, Department of Community Medicine, ESIC Medical College, Hyderabad and Dr. Prashant Kokiwar, Professor & HOD, Department of Community Medicine, MRIMS, who briefed the students regarding the potential hazards of climatic change and how they can be avoided.

The course was conducted for 100 students of I year MBBS (2020 Batch) via online mode, using the Zoom platform.
