Foreword :

Medical disorders in pregnancy present unique challenges that require the collaborative expertise of both obstetricians, gynecologists and physicians. As healthcare professionals, it is essential to remain up-to-date on the latest advances in managing these complex conditions, which can significantly impact both maternal and fetal outcomes. This Continuing Medical Education (CME) program is designed to equip you with the necessary knowledge and skills to navigate the intricate interplay between pregnancy and pre-existing or newly diagnosed medical disorders.

Our goal is to foster a multidisciplinary approach to care, recognizing that the best outcomes arise from seamless collaboration between obstetric and medical teams. From cardiovascular issues to endocrine disorders, autoimmune diseases to respiratory conditions, the topics covered in this brochure will provide insights into diagnosis, management, and treatment options that prioritize the health of both mother and baby.

We hope this CME program serves as a valuable resource in enhancing your practice and ultimately improving the quality of care you provide to pregnant women with medical disorders. By staying informed and engaged, together we can advance maternal health and ensure safer pregnancies.

Sincerely,

Dr C Yadavendra Reddy,
Professor and Hod,
Department of General Medicine,
Mallareddy Institute of Medical Sciences
